There has always been a discussion about the price of doTERRA oils, so it is important for customer to understand the most affordable way to purchase their oils

Even though price is a factor when buying anything, trust in the product is also vital. So, having a good relationship with the seller will be the difference between buy something or not.

Even though the main concept of direct selling seems to be drifting, having a good virtual relationship has never been so important. Fortunately, doTERRA is an honest and transparent company that offers the highest quality essential oils available. The quality starts from the raw material, the harvesting process all the way to the quality protocol.

The quality protocol testing process

What I love about working with this company is their boundless drive for perfection. They want their oils to be unbeatable regarding the quality and purity of the products around the world. This is achieved by taking every bottle of oil through the most rigorous testing program science can provide. This means the customer is never disappointed when they receive their order.

Aromas made by the gods

I can recall opening my first bottle of oil from doTERRA and being impressed with the aroma. The experience pulled at my senses and provoked a strong emotional response. This was something I had not felt before from an essential oil. Nature has given us this power to extract the therapeutic compounds and properties from the seeds, bark, stems, roots and flowers. It is no wonder that aroma oils have such a long and profound history on society and on the lives of the people willing to use them.

Using the soul of the plant

The raw material on nature is already using the benefits of their essences. The aroma that we often smell from plants are used to protect and attract insects in the environment. We as humans have found the key to our personal health and wellness by extracting their essence. In doing so, we can use it for various therapeutic uses such as cooking, beauty and wellness practices.

I am interested. Where can I buy essential oils?
